Imaging Visual Methods for Green Criminology SpringerLink

Abstract. The interaction between what we observe and the words used to describe our observations produces reciprocal understandings. In this chapter, I describe some theoretical and methodological principles for the use of the photographic image as a method of researching environmental crimes and harms a green criminology with images with a particular focus on the use of photo elicitation.

HARM REDUCTION Sociology

Sociology Index. HARM REDUCTION. Harm reduction, a term often used in discussions of drug users, prostitutes, etc. Rather than taking a moralistic approach, perhaps focusing on punishment or rehabilitation, the harm reduction approach tries to reduce the harm that comes to such offenders. Harm reduction policies meant to manage behaviors such as recreational drug use and sexual activity in

What Was Visual Sociology

For the same reason, we have sociology, and a special subfield called visual sociology, because for whatever reason, sociology is assumed to be a purely textual discipline (the same situation applies to visual anthropology). Visual is considered to be strange, not really sociology, not really scientific, or it is simply forgotten.
